To sustain your operations, you need to seamlessly connect your dispersed locations with a high-capacity network — one that delivers a consistent, mission-critical level of performance.

While the goal is straightforward, the journey can be complicated. First, you need to identify and contract the right network carriers. Then, you need to identify the right network components. Finally, you need to manage your environment. These activities impose time, cost and added work demands.

The challenges will only continue to grow. As your end users access more applications in the cloud, they’re driving demand for greater bandwidth. To meet this demand at the lowest price point, enterprises often seek help from multiple carriers. That means more vendors to manage. It also means constantly reevaluating network equipment as needs evolve.

CompuCom® Network Carrier Solutions constitute a unique offering designed to meet your network challenges. This innovative approach combines our proven Managed Network Services with a suite of services to identify, select and manage network carriers.

CompuCom Network Carrier Solutions deliver the network services, performance and outcomes you need, including:

- Best-in-class carrier services and pricing in every geography.
- Easier, less time-consuming management of both carriers and networks.
- An optimal network for higher end-user satisfaction and productivity.
- Greater network and application performance to meet today’s business requirements.
- A lower total cost of ownership for end-to-end network management.

You can select from the most popular types of network circuits, including:

- MPLS — private IP-based networks for linking corporate locations
- Internet access over Ethernet
- DSL-based Internet (shared broadband)
- 4G LTE for backup of carrier networks
The Right Network for You
With CompuCom Network Carrier Solutions, we start by helping you select the carriers that are right for you. We identify vendors that offer our recommended solution at the lowest price point in the geographies where you do business. In fact, we have agency agreements with more than 100 carriers in the U.S., Canada and select international locations. That lets us take a technology- and carrier-independent approach to procuring the hardware and software that will meet your unique needs.

We then manage your vendor relationships on an ongoing basis. You get the network availability, performance and rapid incident resolution you need, without any of the management headaches.

Our suite of integrated service offerings means we can also procure, configure, stage and install all the network routers, switches and other infrastructure components you need. What’s more, CompuCom provides the expert technicians, best-practice processes and proven toolsets to oversee your end-to-end network on a 24/7 basis. These operations and maintenance services optimize the performance, availability and security of your entire network infrastructure.

Best Practices, Optimum Outcomes
CompuCom Network Carrier Solutions leverage best practices developed over more than 20 years of managing the most demanding network environments. Our tenured and certified network engineers augment their experience with state-of-the-art tools that maintain optimum network performance and availability. We also meet your cost objectives through proven processes and the right mix of onshore, near-shore and offshore staffing.

In short, CompuCom acts as the single service provider that responds to all potential network issues and manages your overall network performance. That means fewer contracts to manage, reduced administrative concerns, fast problem resolution — and a network you can truly depend on.
